(ii) What information we use

We use information you give us, information about how you use our products and service and information we get from third parties. For example:

(a) Identity & Contact Information

When you or others give us information verbally or in writing - this information may be contained in application forms or in records of your transactions with us. Your information may include (but is not limited to):

- Identity & Contact Information: Name, date of birth, copies of ID, contact details, National Insurance number, online user identities, security details to protect your identity, nationality, country of birth residential status and address, email address, work and personal telephone numbers, marital status, family details.

(b) Financial details/circumstances

We may obtain information from your transaction history, including details from whom you receive money, who you pay money to, when the payments are made and how much are the payments. Your information may include (but is not limited to):

- Financial details/circumstances: bank account details (including account number, sort code), any International Bank Account Number (IBAN), currency information, payments information including payment reference information (this may identify precisely who payments to you originate from and who you make payments to), both payment payers and beneficiaries (payees) and their own account details, any Standing Orders and Direct Debits information, transaction credits, transaction debits, credit/debit card details, income details, personal guarantees provided, application processing and administration records, your employment status and employment details of your partner, credit history, credit assessment records, receipt of credit data from credit registers, credit bureau performance data, life assurance and pension details, transaction details, treasury transactions, financial needs/attitudes, contact outcomes, authorised signatories details, source of funds/wealth.

- (c) We might use information publicly available about you - for example, to help verify your address or to trace you via trade directories, on line forums, websites, Facebook, Twitter, Youtube or other social media.
- (d) Information provided by credit reference agencies, credit registration agencies, fraud prevention agencies or public agencies such as property registration authorities, government agencies, the Companies Registration Office or judgement registries.

Your information may include (but is not limited to):

- Medical information
- Criminal Conviction Data
- Marketing information including marketing preferences/contact consent

- Legitimate information access, correction, restriction, deletion, sharing requests, and complaints
- Personal details relating to accounts transferred to NAMA.
- Other personal information including tax and sensitive information. Your information may include (but is not limited to):
 - Details of your tax residency and tax reference number(s) to enable us to comply with UK legislation including relating to any inter-governmental agreements to share tax information.
 - You may have given us sensitive information. For example information about your nationality, a disability, your health, a vulnerability or a change in your personal circumstances. Information about nationality may be used to validate your identity, for research and statistical purposes and to comply with our legal obligations. Other sensitive information will only be used to provide any support you might need to help you manage your accounts.

(iii) Joint Applicants and Accounts

If you make a joint application we will also collect the personal information mentioned above about any other applicant. You must show this privacy notice to all other applicants and ensure they confirm that they know you will share their information with us for the purposes described in this Privacy Notice. If you look at the “The legal bases for use” section (below) you will see reference to consent and a description of some limited scenarios where it may be relevant to what we do with personal information. If we ask you to obtain consent from any joint applicants (such as for marketing) you should do that using the tick boxes on your application form or other consent capture mechanism that we may provide.

- When you open a joint Account or product, this may mean that your information will be shared with the other applicant(s). For example, transactions made by you can be seen by your joint Account Holder and vice versa.
- In respect of joint Accounts and products, we will treat any instruction or consent received from an individual Account Holder as an instruction or consent on behalf of all Account Holders, until such time as we are told otherwise. If any consent provided in respect of a joint Account is withdrawn, it will be withdrawn on behalf of all of you.

- For this reason, we suggest that all Account Holder(s) discuss any decisions as to Account management or Account information together prior to making any changes, so that you each maintain full awareness of the treatment of all your personal information.

(iv) The legal bases for use of your information and the ways in which we use it

 - Compliance with binding requests for information from other payment service providers you have instructed to act for you.
 - Compliance with binding requests for information about you from other payment service providers from whom you may have received payments in error so that the payer may contact you directly. This information will include your name, address and relevant transaction information.
 - Compliance with binding production orders or search warrants, orders relating to requests for mutual legal assistance in criminal matters received from foreign law enforcement agencies/prosecutors.
 - Compliance with disclosure orders arising in civil proceedings
 - Compliance with our obligation to provide access to your Account information to an Account Information Service Provider (AISP) or a Payment Initiation Service Provider (PISP), where you or your joint Account Holder has instructed the AISP or the PISP to access the information
- (d) To protect your vital interests. In exceptional circumstances we may use and/or disclose information we hold about you to identify, locate or protect you.
- (e) Processing for a substantial public interest under laws that apply to us where this helps us to meet our broader social obligations such as:
- Processing of your special categories of personal data about your health or if you are a vulnerable customer.
 - Processing that we need to do to fulfil our legal obligations and regulatory requirements.
 - When we share your personal information with other people and organisations such as members of our Group if they need to know that you are a vulnerable customer and your relatives, social services, your carer, the person who has power of attorney over your affairs.
- (f) Where you have consented to the use of your information. We will ask for your consent for direct marketing where relevant, Data Analytics, and any other uses of your information that require your consent to process some special categories of information. For example information about your physical or mental health may require your explicit consent. If this applies to you we will explain how we use and share that information when we ask for your consent.

(v) Automated decision making

- (a) We may use automated decision making when credit scoring an application you have made for credit products or services.
- When you apply for credit, an automated system known as credit scoring may be used when considering whether to agree the borrowing. It is a method of assessing your likely conduct of an account based on a range of information, including the conduct of previous similar accounts. It is a system widely used by credit providers to help make fair and informed decisions on lending.

- Credit scoring is a form of automated decision making that may have a legal or other significant effect on you as it will indicate whether or not your application for credit is likely to be successful
- Credit scoring takes account of information from three sources - the information you provide on your application, information provided by credit reference agencies and information that may already be held about you by companies in the Bank of Ireland Group. A credit scoring system will consider information from these sources, to make an overall assessment of your application.

The credit scoring methods used are regularly tested to ensure they remain fair, effective and unbiased. Using a credit scoring system helps our Group companies to lend responsibly. If you submit an application and it is declined through this automated process, you can contact us within one month to have the decision reconsidered. You also have the right to ask that the decision is not made based solely using a credit scoring system.

(b) We may make decisions about you based on the profiling of your information.

Profiling is a form of automated processing of your information to evaluate, analyse or predict your economic situation, preferences, reliability, behaviour, location and may be used, for example:

- To assess your transaction history and/or current repayments and /or account balances to predict when you might want to increase an existing credit facility or consider a new loan or savings product
- when you or any authorised user on your Account uses a payment card or payment card information to perform a transaction, information may be sent to us to evaluate and determine whether to approve, decline or refer a transaction for further review
- To analyse the frequency of your use of online or mobile banking to tailor our methods of communication with you subject to any contact or marketing preferences you have expressed.

With the exception of credit scoring that is necessary for entering into a contract with you we will not use profiling to make a decision about you that has a legal or other significant effect on you without your explicit consent.

You may ask us not to make decisions about you that are based solely on automated processing. If you do this, you may not be offered some products or services that we might otherwise have offered to you.

(vi) Data Analytics

(a) We may use Data Analytics to process your information if you have given us your consent.

Data Analytics is the analysis of your information and may be used to help us make informed business decisions to:

- Improve our understanding of your needs
- Improve the quality of products and services we can offer you
- Facilitate the development of personalised information and promotions in real time
- Reward you for your business through personalised loyalty and reward programmes.

We may, for example:

- Review your transaction history to identify your spending and saving habits
- Use your location data to send you information in relation to special offers from our partners in your then current location.

(vii) Sharing your information

Where we have a lawful reason for using your information, we may also share it for the lawful reasons given below. We share your information with:

- (g) Third parties in connection with a sale or purchase of assets by a member of Bank of Ireland Group plc to protect our legitimate interests. The identity of any third parties in connection with a sale or purchase of assets who are directly or indirectly interested in or participating in, whether directly or indirectly in any transfer/assignment, loan assignment/transfer and securitisation scheme, collateralisation scheme or any other encumbrance or funding arrangement howsoever arising including but not limited to the transfer of information to NAMA, its agents, appointees and related entities will be provided, where relevant, on request.
- (h) Payment facilitators to perform our contract with you. SWIFT Moneygram
- (i) Third party individuals and service providers in respect of whom you have asked that we share or allow access to your information to perform our contract with you and/or with your consent. We will act on the authority of one joint Account Holder to share or allow a third party access to any Account information including transaction detail. This means we will treat the authority of one Account Holder as authorisation on behalf of any other Account Holder(s) for a joint Account. If you instruct us to share or allow a third party access to any Account information for a joint Account you are responsible for ensuring the other Account Holder(s) are aware and permit such access. Third parties may include (but are not limited to):

- Legal representatives
- Accountants and Financial Advisors
- Other Financial Institutions or service providers
- Family members or friends
- Debt counselling services
- Third Party Service Providers.

Currently, there are two types of third party service providers that you or your joint Account Holder may choose to instruct. They are:

- Account Information Service Provider (AISPs) which may access certain information about your Account (e.g. balance, charges, transaction history, etc.) on a continuous basis. Where you choose to instruct an AISP in respect of a joint Account, you should be mindful of the fact that personal information of your joint Account Holder may also be sent to the AISP. Similarly, your joint Account Holder may also choose to instruct an AISP resulting in your personal information being shared with the AISP without further reference to you. We will however notify you in the event that Account information has been shared with an AISP. More information about how we manage joint Accounts is set out at Joint Accounts above. If you or your joint Account Holder tells us to stop sharing information with an AISP, we will do so and tell the AISP of your instructions. We would also recommend that you contact the AISP to indicate your wishes as to its treatment of the information about your Account that it has already received.
- Payment Initiation Service Provider (PISP) which may initiate single immediate domestic sterling payments on your Account from time to time.

In order to avail of any AISP or PISP services, your Account must be accessible online. You must follow our online authorisation and verification process that we have set up for this purpose. Your Account terms & conditions will tell if you can do this and if so, the relevant terms and conditions which will apply.

- (j) Other third parties to protect your vital interests or for a substantial public interest. In exceptional circumstances only. See “The legal bases for use of your information and how we use it” above.

(viii) Consequences of not providing information

We need your information in order to:

- Provide products and services to you.
- Perform our contract with you.
- Comply with our legal obligations.
- Protect our legitimate interests and manage our business.

If you chose not to provide information we will not be able to:

- Provide requested products or services to you.
- Continue to provide/ renew existing products or services.

We will tell you when we ask for information which is not a contractual requirement or needed to comply with our legal obligations.

(ix) Your Information Rights

You have the following rights in relation to your information:

- To obtain confirmation as to whether or not we use your information.
- To receive a copy of or access the information we hold about you.
- Have inaccurate or incomplete information corrected and updated.
- In some circumstances, have your information deleted.
- In some circumstances, have our use of your information restricted.
- Object to the processing of your information.
- Have the information you provide to us moved or transferred.

This right allows individuals to obtain and reuse their personal information for their own purposes across different services; to move, copy or transfer their personal information easily from one environment to another in a safe and secure way without hindrance to usability. This right can only be relevant where personal information is being processed based on a consent or for performance of a contract and is carried out by automated means. This right is different from the right of access (see above) and that the types of information you can obtain under the two separate rights may be different. You are not able to obtain through the data portability right all of the personal information that you can obtain through the right of access.

- Where any processing is based on your consent, to withdraw your consent. For processing that is based on your consent, you have the right at any time to withdraw it and you can do this by contacting our Data Protection Officer using the details below. The consequence of withdrawing your consent would be, for example:
 - Withdrawal of marketing consent where relevant - you may not receive details of products and services from us.
 - Withdrawal of consent to use special categories of data where relevant - that data may not be taken into consideration by us.
 - not to be subject to a decision based solely on automated processing.

Contact our Data Protection Officer if you require a copy of the information we hold about you or about any of your information rights. You will find the contact details of our Data Protection Officer at the end of this notice. You also have the right to complain to the Information Commissioner's Office. By post: Information Commissioner's Office, Wycliffe House, Water Lane, Wilmslow, Cheshire, SK9 5AF. Tel: 0303 123 1113, Monday to Friday between 9am and 5pm www.ico.org.uk

(x) Retention of your information

We will only retain your information for a limited period of time based upon certain factors.

- In case of queries. We will retain the personal information that we need to keep in case of queries from you (for instance, if you apply unsuccessfully for a product or service).
- In case of claims. We will retain the personal information that we need to keep for the period in which you might legally bring claims against us.
- In accordance with legal and regulatory requirements. We will retain the personal information that we need to keep after the relevant contract you have with us has come to an end to satisfy our legal and regulatory requirements.

Factors determining period of retention of your information include:

- Any regulatory rules that we must follow that are set by authorities like the Bank of England, the Financial Conduct Authority and the Prudential Regulation Authority
- The type of financial product that we have provided to you
- Whether you and us are in a legal or some other type of dispute with another person or each other
- The type of information that we hold about you

- Whether you or a regulatory authority asks us to keep it for a valid reason.
- Whether we use your information for long term statistical modelling provided that such modelling does not affect your privacy.

(xi) Using companies to process your information outside the EEA

Sometimes your personal information may be transferred outside the UK or the European Economic Area. If it is processed within Europe or other parts of the European Economic Area (EEA) then it is protected by European data protection standards. Some countries outside the EEA do have adequate protection for personal information under laws that apply to us. We will make sure that suitable safeguards are in place before we transfer your personal information to countries outside the EEA which do not have adequate protection under laws that apply to us except in cases where what are called 'derogations' apply.

For more information about suitable safeguards and how to obtain a copy of them or to find out where they have been made available you can contact our Data Protection Officer using the details below

(xii) Contact our Data Protection Officer

If you have questions about how we use your information, you can reach our Data Protection Officer by writing to:

Northridge Finance - Data Protection Officer

(xiii) Other Privacy Notices you should read

Ensure you read the Privacy Notices issued by Credit Reference Agencies and Fraud Prevention Agencies. You can also access their Privacy Notices at their websites. Please see the sections "To enter into and perform our contract with you" [section (iv) a] and "To comply with our legal obligations" [section (iv) c] above. You can also access their Privacy Notices via the 'Your Data' section of our website www.northridgefinance.com/yourdata

If you were introduced to us by a broker or other intermediary, ask your broker or other intermediary for a copy of its own Privacy Notice if you have not already seen it. You should also ask for a copy of the Privacy Notice of any third party product and service providers you contract with, including any you ask us to share your information with or allow to access your information. For example, third party Account Information Service Providers (AISPs) or Payment Initiation Service Providers (PISPs).

(xiv) Changes

We will update this Privacy Notice from time to time on our website. Any significant changes will be notified to you by post, SMS, e-mail or when you log onto 365 online, start 365 mobile app or one of our other mobile apps.

(xv) Business Products Only

INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR BUSINESS

We may search the records of business data held by credit reference agencies designated by the Treasury under the power conferred by the Small and Medium Size (Credit Information Regulations 2015) and give those credit reference agencies information about your business accounts. Business data held by the credit reference agencies may be shared with other organisations authorised by you.
